

21 Art Shows to See in New York This Summer

By Billy Anania June 13, 2022

This summer already feels different from the last couple of years. Spending time with family and friends is a welcome respite, as is experiencing art in person again across the five boroughs. Against all odds, New York's museum and nonprofit spaces are operating at full capacity for the first time since 2019, with programs looking back on recent history and forward to challenges ahead. With the summer equinox just around the corner, we present our most anticipated exhibitions of the season.

Lydia Ourahmane: Tassili

Installation view of Lydia Ourahmane, "Tassili" (2022) (photo by Charles Benton, courtesy SculptureCenter)

When: through August 1

Where: SculptureCenter (44-19 Purves Street, Long Island City, Queens)

Ourahmane's latest body of work draws influence from the remote desert region of Tassili n'Ajjer, located between Libya and Algeria. Filmed on-site and projected onto massive screens, these hulking installations produce dramatic, larger-than-life effects that shift with time and perspective.