Talk: Banu Cennetoğlu at SculptureCenter

The Turkish-born artist Banu Cennetoğlu's first solo exhibition in the U.S. is currently on view at SculptureCenter, and it includes a 128-hour video documenting the artist's life over the past 12 years, since she moved back to her home country after stints in New York, Paris, and Amsterdam. The piece is made up of images and videos exclusively taken from electronic devices the artist has owned dating back to 2006, and serves as both a personal, political, and technological history. At this event, Cennetoğlu will be on hand to discuss the work with critic Kaelen Wilson-Goldie.

SculptureCenter, 44-19 Purves Street, Queens, 7 p.m.
