1. Matt Keegan: what was & what is SculptureCenter

For SculptureCenter's fourth annual Public Process program, the museum has commissioned New York artist Matt Keegan to create a new sculpture on Long Island City's Court Square Park. The 8-foot-tall rectangular structure titled what was & what is is pulled from a developer's comment in a 2017 New York Times article on urban development in the area. Visitors will find a monumental empty structure comprising four walls and a dollhouse view on the floor of an empty one-bedroom rental apartment. —Lucy Rees
